Frontier Girls Presentation Slide Show Script

1. Introduction Slide

Thank you for taking the time to learn a little more about Frontier Girls. My name is _____, and I'm hoping to start a Frontier Girls troop here in our community.

2. Empowering Girls

If you're not familiar with Frontier Girls, it is a scouting-style program for girls that has been around since 2007. It gives girls a place to try new things, learn practical skills, serve their community, develop leadership skills, and most importantly, have fun while doing it.

One of the things that first attracted me to Frontier Girls was just how much there is for girls to explore. With more than 1,200 badges, higher awards, community service, leadership opportunities, and activities for girls of all ages, there really is something for almost every interest.

But what I'd really like to show you today is not just what Frontier Girls is. I'd like to show you what a Frontier Girls troop could bring to your organization and our community, and why I think it could be a great program for us to offer.

3. What is Frontier Girls

Frontier Girls is a scouting-style program for girls offered by Curiosity Untamed LLC.

Curiosity Untamed provides the curriculum, badge and award requirements, age levels, uniform, Promise, Creed, ceremonies, leadership opportunities, and other program resources.

Local troops, however, are independently operated. Your organization decides when and where your troop meets, which badges and activities to pursue, how often to meet, what dues to charge, whether to fundraise, and how the troop fits within your existing programs.

This gives your organization an established program to work with while allowing you to operate the troop in a way that makes sense for the girls, families, and community you serve.

4. Promise

At the heart of Frontier Girls is a simple Promise:

“I promise to love God, be loyal to my country, and love my neighbor as myself.”

Those few words represent three values that have been central to Frontier Girls since the beginning: faith, patriotism, and caring for others.

Frontier Girls is open to girls of all faiths. The program itself is non-denominational, allowing the organization operating the troop and participating families to approach faith according to their own beliefs and traditions.

For organizations that already value character, citizenship, and service, the Promise provides a natural foundation for helping girls put those values into practice.

5. Creed

The Frontier Girls Creed turns character into something girls can practice every day.

Frontier Girls strive to be:

Loving, Joyful, Peaceful, Patient, Kind, Good, Faithful, Gentle, and Self-Controlled.

We don't want these to be words girls simply memorize. Troop activities, badges, leadership opportunities, and community service give girls opportunities to practice them.

Girls learn to work with others, follow through on responsibilities, handle challenges, help people who need them, and understand that character is demonstrated by what they do.

6. Motto

Our motto may be the best summary of what we want Frontier Girls to become:

“If you see a need, take the lead!”

Leadership isn't limited to holding an office or standing in front of a group. It begins with noticing that something needs to be done and being willing to step forward.

That might mean helping a younger girl, organizing a service project, solving a problem, helping at one of your organization's events, or noticing someone who needs a hand.

Frontier Girls gives girls repeated opportunities to practice that kind of everyday leadership.

7. Age Levels

One thing that makes Frontier Girls a little different is that the program is specifically designed for multi-age troops.

We have six age levels, from preschool through adult:

Penguins – Preschool, ages 3–5
Otters – Kindergarten through Grade 2
Dolphins – Grades 3–5
Butterflies – Grades 6–8
Eagles – Grades 9–12
Owls – Adults

Girls of different ages can work on the same badge topic together, but the requirements become more challenging as they get older.

That means you don't need separate troops or completely different activities for every age group. Sisters can participate together, younger girls learn from older girls, and older girls have natural opportunities to lead and mentor.

8. Areas of Discovery

Frontier Girls has more than 1,200 badges organized into the nine Areas of Discovery you see here.

And that huge variety is one of my favorite things about the program. Girls aren't limited to just outdoor activities or traditional scouting skills. They can explore everything from science and art to cooking, animals, history, first aid, careers, financial literacy, and hundreds of other topics.

Every girl is different. One may be fascinated by robotics while another loves animals or art. Frontier Girls gives them a chance to explore the things they already love while also encouraging them to try things they may never have thought about before.

9. Community Needs Strong Girls

Girls need opportunities to do real things. They need to try, sometimes fail, figure things out, and discover what they are capable of doing.

That is a big part of Frontier Girls. Badge work is designed to be hands-on whenever possible, so girls aren't just learning about something—they're actually experiencing it.

And with more than 1,200 badges, they have plenty of opportunities to discover what they enjoy. They may find something they love, something they're surprisingly good at, or something they never would have tried on their own.

10. Patriotism

Patriotism and support for our military have been part of Frontier Girls since the beginning.

Girls learn respect for our country and its flag, explore American history and citizenship, participate in flag ceremonies, and are encouraged to find meaningful ways to honor and support both current military members and veterans.

Girls from military families also receive special recognition. Girls with a family member who is currently serving or who served in the past are known as Patriots and may wear a special ribbon and service flag pin on their Frontier Girls vest recognizing their family's service.

For Frontier Girls, patriotism is about service, gratitude, citizenship, and respect—not politics.

11. Benefits

Frontier Girls is designed to work within the organization that runs the troop. You already know what is important to your organization and what you want to accomplish in your community. The program gives you plenty of room to build those values and goals into what your troop does.

That also means the troop can become involved in the work you're already doing. Girls and their families can volunteer at your events, participate in your service projects, and become more connected to your organization.

Over time, that can bring new families through your doors, give you more people willing to help, and make your organization more visible in the community.

Frontier Girls gives you the program to start with, but you decide what you want your troop to accomplish.

12. Why Partner

Creating a youth program from scratch takes a lot of work, and then you have to keep coming up with new things to keep the girls interested.

With Frontier Girls, most of that work has already been done for you. The program has been growing since 2007 and includes not only badges and higher awards but also a variety of resources to help leaders run their troop.

Your leaders don't have to spend all their time creating a program. They can focus on working with the girls and choosing activities that fit their interests.

And as those interests change, the program can change with them. There is always something new to explore.

13. How It Works

So how does all of this actually work?

Your organization purchases a Frontier Girls Troop Membership through Curiosity Untamed. That gives you access to the program and allows you to operate a troop using the Frontier Girls name.

Each girl in the troop also needs her own Frontier Girls membership, either individually or as part of a family membership.

From there, you have the Frontier Girls program to work with, including the badges, awards, uniform, Promise, Creed, and age levels. Because the program is designed for multiple ages, you don't need a separate troop for every age group.

Your organization runs the troop and makes the decisions about how it operates. Curiosity Untamed provides the program and resources you need to do it.

14. Support

We want leaders spending their time working with the girls, not trying to figure everything out on their own.

They have access to the Leader Handbook, the entire badge and award program, and the forms and resources they need to run their troop. There are also ready-made lesson plans for many topics and an online system for those who want to keep their records electronically.

If you have several people helping with the troop, the Troop Leader can request complimentary leader access for volunteers who need it. Each volunteer gets their own account and access to the leader resources they need.

The program is already there. Your leaders can concentrate on making it fun and bringing it to life for the girls.

15. Responsibilities

Your organization is the one actually running the troop. Curiosity Untamed provides the Frontier Girls program and resources, but the day-to-day decisions and policies are yours.

You choose your leaders and volunteers and decide how you want the troop to operate. That includes things like your own safety policies, background check requirements, finances, insurance, and fundraising.

This gives your organization real control over the youth program it is providing.

You know your community, your families, your facilities, and your own policies better than we do. Frontier Girls provides the program framework; your organization determines how that framework is put into practice locally.

16. Fundraising

Frontier Girls does not have a national fundraiser, and troops are never required to sell a particular product.

Your organization decides whether its troop fundraises and what types of fundraising are appropriate under its own policies.

Most importantly:

Curiosity Untamed does not take any portion of your fundraising proceeds.

Money raised by your troop or organization stays with your troop or organization for legitimate troop expenses.

It can help pay for badges and awards, supplies, activities, trips, service projects, equipment, and other costs of operating the troop.

If your girls work to raise money for their program, that money stays local.

17. Next Step

Picture the difference you could make in our community by giving girls a place to grow their confidence, explore their talents, and learn the joy of service.

Frontier Girls makes it easy to offer that opportunity while strengthening your organization's connection with local families. You'll be building future leaders who value faith, service, and country—and who will stand ready to support your organization's mission for years to come.

Let's work together to bring Frontier Girls to our community and invest in the leaders of tomorrow.

18. Questions

Thank you for taking the time to learn about Frontier Girls and how a troop could fit into your organization.

If you have any questions about getting started, please let me know. If I can't answer them, you can always reach out to Curiosity Untamed directly by email or phone. They are happy to answer questions or explain anything in more detail if needed.
